The Oklahoma rush was thought to be a big thing, but cannot compare with this. There are now $,000 people in line here. For the last four days at least 2,000 people a day have arrived. They are being taken care of, however.

The Cherokee towns will be placed before the public today. Robert L. Owens, attorney for the Cherokees, and who pushed their claims at Washington, will be here today and the townsites will be placed on the market. The Cherokees own allotten is at every town and county seat in the strip. The interior department has ruled that settlers can take but one 25-foot lot in a county seat town. So small a lot for residence purposes is practically worthless, and the ruling will be a serious blow to all the townsites where county seats are located. Rival towns will spring up in their immediate vicinity, where their friends before their condition could be discovered.

The day was intensely hot, and a hot wind, which burns up all vegetation and does not temper the sun's heat, was raising the prairie dust and playing the mischief with the health of the boomers. Those standing in front of the registration booths suffered most. During the morning eighteen men were prostrated and were carried away by their friends. Two of them died before medical aid could be found. As the day progressed others fell out of the ranks exhausted, and before the cool of the evening brought relief a total of fifty sunstrokes and six deaths had been reported. The names of the dead could reported. The names of the dead could not be ascertained.

Chief Clerk M. A: Jacobs of the general

Chief Clerk M. A: Jacobs of the general land office, who has charge of the registration of the homeseekers, has added a force of clerks to those eugaged in the registration here, and the booths will be kept open day and night hereafter. The work of registering will thus be greacly facilitated and all will have an opportunity to secure certificates. This action has caused much rejoicing among the boomers.

At 3 o'clock this marning a serious fight took place near the booths. A gambler drove out in a carriage with two women to see the sights. A couple of drunken soldiers took after the women, and their companion attempted to defend them. He took a bottle of whisky out of his pocket and proceeded to beat one of the soldiers owe the head with it. The soldier tried toget at his revolver, but, not succeeding, the other soldier got it and commenced to shoot wildly. He created a panic among the boomers, who fied in all directions. The sheriff, coming up at this time on horseback, got in line of the bullets and his horse was killed. The officers and other troops coming up, secured the drunken soldiers.

At least fifty people were carried out of the ranks of the homeseekers today in an insensible condition. A young man named Adams, whose home is at Winfield, died shortly after being taken out. Many others recovered and took their places in line again, while others were removed by their friends before their condition could be discovered.

southern border, that a few truths may be of interest. There are not many thousand people here—perhaps 3,000, all scattered along a line of several miles. Over 2,000 of them registered yesterday, and many of them left as soon as that was done. There are no tough Texas ruffians here. The 100-foot strip is not crowded anywhere, not even for any distance south of Arkansas City. There is a little petty thieving, and five horses were stolen Saturday night on this side. The people are all good-natured.

Water is scarce in Orlando. It is being sold at 50 cents per burketful, but there are places a few miles from town where water is yet fairly plentiful. The trees and grass are much creener here than in the state. The land is quite rolling, with a red soil for the most part. The Red Rock has only water in places. WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 -Though the bill repeal the federal election laws is to be presented tomorrow in the house, it is not at all probable that the debate on the measure will begin before Fri. ay. There s a good deal of opposition manifested, even on the Democratic side, to the pres ent consideration of the proposition to ent consideration of the proposition to repeal the federal election laws. It is claimed that it will detract attention from the senate, and in this way, as well as by angering the Republicans, will endanger the cause of repeal. The southerners, however, say that they have aiready sacrificed their opinions on the silver question to the position of the administration, and to the position of the Muhammandu, and that they cannot go back to their constituents unless something is done that is directly desired by that section. The exact program which the Republicans will follow in their opposition to the repeal of the election laws has not yet been made

The Red Rock has only water in places. The Salt Fork is a running stream about the size of the Little river at Wichita, and the Black Bear is likewise almost entirely dry. The timber all these streams is insignificant, karried and stunted. There seems to be very fittle bottom land. A good share of the upland is rocky and very rough and only it for grazing. The dust is several inches deep and the sun shines hotter than it ever did in Kansas. The nights are cold—positively cold, not simply chilly.

Therefare a good many people here from Retuncky and Texas; but they are nice people, poor but kind and courteous.

Horses, or rather ponies, are being continually soid at auction in Orlando. They are not as high priced as the same horses would be in Wichita.

Eif Woodcock furnishes us most of our amusement. George Ross does the singing. Olinger the bossing and cooking, and he rest of the Wichita boys are doing incely. Our horses fared badly on the trip, several being lamed.

Here's a verse heard now as the scribe is by the lantern writing, sung by an evident southerner and undoubtedly improvised:

"Wrote my girl in Cincinnat!.

Asket her to tell me what's the mattah: She said she really thought she'd faint-ligues she's got the strip complaint."

Et is the fever you see. Everybody has it here-in fact, it is like Baraum coming to to town, a regular circus day.
